

For the many
– not the few!

Everyone should have equal opportunities to both succeed and to get help when we need it. That is not what it's like today. Too many of the good things go to those who already have the most. We need a fair and environmentally friendly society, both locally, nationally and globally. We want to protect the best of Norwegian society – little differences, low unemployment and strong communities. We must reduce disparities, strengthen welfare and tackle poverty.

The climate crisis and the destruction of nature threaten our entire future, because short-term profits are put before the environment. The answer to the crises we are facing now must be a comprehensive and fair plan for climate and industry. A plan that, with substantial investments, will provide assignments to the industry in the coming years. We will change Norway to become a pioneering country that pulls the world in an environmentally friendly and climate-friendly direction.

It is time for a whole new economic policy. One that can solve the climate crisis and at the same time reduce inequality and tackle unemployment. SV's plan for a fair green shift is about hope and change. We will reduce the disparities, build up the industry and share benefits and burdens. Then we must put aside the grey, unsociable and heavy-handed policies that the government is pursuing. We will make the country green and for the many – not grey and for the few.
